

BRITISH LABOR SITUATION STILL AT DEADLOCK—CONFERENCE BROKEN OFF

Flooding of Mines Goes On and Transport Workers Threaten to Join in Strike Which Would Swell Number of Idle to 5,000,000—Violence Increases.

By Telegrams to The Freeman.
London, April 7.—"No government could possibly see to the challenge of the Miners' Federation," Premier Lloyd-George told the miners' executive committee at a conference today, the abrupt ending of which signified a break in all negotiations for a settlement of the coal strike and brought back the menace of a tremendous national industrial upheaval.

The premier's utterance was quoted in an official communication this afternoon. He admitted having been mistaken in his hope that an understanding could be reached. The miners stand, he said, made this utterly impossible. They refused to guarantee continuance of

The miners' executive committee will meet again till Saturday morning.

Meanwhile the disastrous flooding of the mines continues. Military protection of the pumps appears inevitable. The cabinet is in session discussing the situation.

In the West Lothian area incendiarianism has broken out. Serious damage was done by flames sweeping the stockyards.

The transport workers already have declared their readiness to back the miners to the limit.

A "triple alliance" strike would mean absolute nation-wide paralysis with more than 5,000,000 workers idle.

Almost simultaneously the national union of railway men asked the transport workers to join them in an immediate consultation to agree on "the next steps to be taken to assist the miners."

EASTER CONCERT

Much Enjoyed—Again Tonight at Lutheran Church.

The sixteenth annual Easter concert of the Spring Street Lutheran Trinity Church given in the school hall Wednesday evening was very largely attended the hall being filled to capacity. The audience was delighted with the fine program which was rendered mostly by children and consists of drills, action songs and vocal songs. The various numbers, especially the last number, "The Sewing Circle at Mrs. Smith's," brought out round after round of applause from the audience, and the "please" rendition from first until last was beyond criticism and kept the turned after a brief conference. J. H. Thomas, its head, said: "There is no element of doubt as to what the decision will be." At this exalting a deadlock exists. Everything now depends upon the action of the Triple Alliance which yesterday postponed its final decision.

The national calamity which had been averted by the prime minister's eleventh hour move yesterday now looms with even more menace.

Riots and disorders continue at most of the coal fields as the disastrous effects of the mines, due to withdrawal of the pumping crews and the riotous interference by strikers with counter pumps

By a comparison of many statements and the entire proceedings to date, regarding this case, it would seem, a strong case against the woman would develop, if that that woman was the same woman who lived with the woman who the government has taken things out of the man might be in the wrong in another possible case.

FIXINGS THAT ADD TO GOWNS

Jewelry Serves as Decoration to Brighten Milady's Severely Plain Outfit.

BAGS ARE THINGS OF BEAUTY

Accessory Not Elaborate or Fussy; Sometimes Quite Colorful in Design—Shoes and Slippers Are Snub-Nosed.

What would a costume be without those finishing touches that fill out the picture? This season they seem to be even more important than they have been in years past, for the simple reason, says a fashion writer, that most of the gowns are plain in design and treatment, establishing the rule that if there are extra fixings they must be perfect or they will stick out like sore thumbs. For this very reason the extra fixing assumes a new importance in that it must usually, or very often, be the only bit of trimming there is about the gown. Therefore, if it is not quite in harmony with the very outfit which it accompanies, it will put the whole arrangement out of key and the effect will be one of extreme stupidity instead of ultra smartness, as it should have been.

Don't think that just any string of beads will do to live up to a gown that is dull and plain to appearance. There is a string of beads for that gown you buy which is better than all other strings, and unless you succeed in finding that one your whole purpose will be thwarted, and the look of the gown will be spoiled instead of helped, as you meant to have it. These are fine points and valuable ones.

A shockingly incongruous effect is the dress of classic lines and exquisite material all in black and a crepe satin surface, with a chain of brilliant red stones hung about the throat, when the stones are too large and the color is too glaring. Sometimes pale stones will look brilliant in a connection of this sort, and sometimes the brilliant ones will just succeed in making known their identity above every other accessory.

Jade, Color of Moment.

Jade is the color of the moment as far as jewelry is concerned. And a touch of this brilliant green carries further than perhaps any other bit of semi-precious stone. Jade is done in all ways, but some of the newest ornaments in fashion are the hampins which dangle in tiers and are fastened over the right eye in a plain, darkly colored satin turban of one sort or another. Some of these pins have dangles made in circles and successors of circles, from which a bobbing head emanates, and the whole thing swings about in a most informal manner. Jade rings, with enormous stones, are as popular as ever, and on hands which are large enough to stand their massiveness they are really stunning looking, though it must be said that they are best when they are worn alone, for they do not go very nicely with other and more delicately designed jewelry.

The carved jade dangles, worn on bits of black ribbon around the throat, are most effective against dark crepe and woven dresses. The carvings are expensive, because this particular stone is so hard to cut. But, then, a little of it goes a great way on account of the stimulating quality of its peculiar color.

Jade bracelets, too, are in demand, for the short sleeves that are so prevalent call loudly for bracelets to deck the bareness of the arms. Some of the jade bracelets are carved in sections to make them look as though a certain number of straight sides had been put together to form a circle; some of them are quite simple in structure. They are all made large enough to slip about on the arm in a decidedly snub-nosed way.

Bracelets of All Sorts.

There are bracelets of all sorts and conditions. There are the old-fashioned ones of single bracelets made of silver or of gold. They clasp on either end and slide up and down the arm in a way that is truly fascinating and they come in the most varied by the million when you go in for the more of less fancy sort of dressing. A new sort of bracelet is made from a string of tiny pearls—a long string that is rolled, over and over the hand until it becomes small enough to be a bracelet of many tiers, of the string beads. When, for any reason, pearls are out of the question for this usage, then there is a lovely little substitute in the shape of a string of tiny silver or silvered beads, with which the same thing can be accomplished. Even with a street costume, it is interesting to see these little beads come clipping down over the neatly gloved hand.

Then there are the gorgeous bracelets made of diamonds and of diamonds in combination with the more colorful precious stones. They are very much in evidence at all the smart functions, worn along with evening and dressy afternoon clothes. They are much to be desired and extremely beautifying in general character. Then there are all sorts of handsome antique bracelets at present being brought out from their hiding places, after many years of existence under cover of the stuffy jewel case. These are, perhaps, the most effective of all when they are worn with the right sort of costumes, but, on the other hand, they are the most difficult to obtain, and, therefore, much less in evidence than are those of more recent origin and design.

The dangling hampins mentioned earlier are done now in all sorts of stones, for they are a popular fixing of the moment. There are those made of cut crystals which are lovely to see, and there are others made of old-fashioned clusters of garnets which are very fascinating. There are those made of all colors and composition, molded into various shapes and sizes and beads, and buttons. No one is quite up to the last word unless she is the proud possessor of one of these pins.

The fan-for beads has extended itself to the matter of belts, and now one sees combinations of buckles and beads and chains that are most attractive when used for girdles. It is seldom that one of these is seen entirely made from one sort of bead. They are good when they are combined with the one-piece dress that boasts no other sort of trimming, for then they can carry the color and the design all by themselves and "get away" with it proudly. One of these made up of silver cord and jade rings was most interesting when combined with a dark blue crepe dress.

Head Beads More Popular.

Head beads are becoming more and more popular in the evening and, with Paris leading the fashion, they are growing a little more elaborate and more inclined to cover the whole of the top of the coiffure. The little bands of formal silver leaves are particularly good looking, and at the opera many of them are seen scattered about the audience. There is another little band of variegated tiny flowers often seen. It came from London, where the women love to wear things in their hair during the dress-up hours of the evening.

Bags for money and bags for trinkets, as well as cigarette cases, etc., are developing in beauty every day, that passes. They are not by any means elaborate or fancy. The soft little pocket-books or card cases, made of brocade silks and edged with little blocks of silver and gold, are about the newest and loveliest things that are to be seen in the better shops. Sometimes they are quite colorful in design, although the finer patterns are usually used, and then again they are made of the simplest black or brown or blue or gray stripes. They are most useful because, on account of their general flexibility, they can hold a lot of things and, at the same time, because of their clever construction, retain their contour.

Shoes and slippers are marching on a new path, from the look of things. They are losing the very exaggerated pointed look that they have held for so long and are becoming more snub-nosed. The very newest ones are not exactly short vamped, as were those that had a sort of flare a year or so ago. These order ones have long enough vamps, but the new themselves curve around in a decidedly snub-nosed way rather than extending into long, pointed effects. The bootmakers tell us that they have all the latest features of a really American shoe, in spite of their change in shape, and that the American woman with a long and narrow foot is going to be just as comfortable in them as she has become accustomed to being.

KINGSTON, N. Y., APRIL 7, 1921.

SCARCITY OF DOCTORS.

Accounts from various sections indicate a widespread scarcity of physicians, especially in rural districts. At the present time, it is said, doctors are too few everywhere outside of the large centers of population, while in many rural sections there are no doctors at all, or only failing old men anxious to give up active practice. The situation is so serious in New England that Massachusetts towns have been offering bonuses to physicians to settle within their boundaries, the town of Otis offering $500 a year out of the public treasury if a doctor will locate there, and other towns going so far as to offer to build a house for a settling doctor, keep an automobile for his use and guarantee him a certain annual income.

In spite of all such inducements, however, it is said to be increasingly difficult in that section and elsewhere to induce medical graduates to take up a country practice, and in consequence the conditions are becoming more and more serious. The day of the old-time country doctor who was more interested in service than in gain seems to have passed or to be rapidly passing. The city has its lure for ambitious young doctors as well as for farmer boys. The conditions in New York state are so bad, that the legislature has been called on to provide a remedy, and it is proposed to erect modern hospitals, clinics and laboratories in every county. Whether the taxpayers in even a rich state can afford all this, and whether, even after such costly undertakings are put through, a sufficient number of young medical graduates will be available remains to be seen. Yet provision of some sort for the benefit of country dwellers seems to be imperative.

AMERICAN ENGLISH.

A correspondent of the New York Herald having shown to his own satisfaction that there is an American "language" unlike that spoken in Great Britain and having given sixteen examples by way of proof, another correspondent of the Herald, a New Yorker now living in Texas, proves to his satisfaction by citing sixteen examples that there is a Texan "language" quite different from that spoken in New York. He notes that the Texans say "kinfolk" instead of relatives, "back" instead of carryall, "penitentiary" instead of state prison, "calaboose" instead of lockup, "brown bread" instead of graham bread, and "paper sack" instead of paper bag. Obviously it will not be necessary to go to the Lone Star State to hear a "Texan language" of this description, for in most of the particulars one can hear it spoken north, south, east and west. Even "gallery" (porch or piazza) is heard in adjoining southern states, and perhaps "tote" (carry), "evening" (afternoon) and "roasting ears" (green corn) are heard in all of them.

If American English differed no more from British English than the common speech of Texas differs from that of New York, there would be no variation to speak of. Inevitably there is a greater variation in consequence of the greater difference in local customs, but it is not great enough to justify talk of an "American language." In England itself there are variations both in common speech and in accent, just as there are in America. To speak of such variations in different parts of the English-speaking world as actual departures from the English language itself is manifestly absurd.

The proposition to let Chaplin, Fairbanks and Pickford take turns with DeWitt, Wagner and Gounod in the Park Opera, in order that that famous temple of music may pay expenses in these troufou times, invites an American editor to remark that "The moving picture as it has been a artistic as some pictures that stand still." Of the moving picture as its worst perhaps it was too painful to speak.

Secretary Mellon's complaint of the rush to get jobs in the Treasury department has recalled Lincoln's remark that because of the pressure of office seekers he was like a man so busy renting rooms at one end of the house that he has no time to put out the fire raging at the other end.

Nowadays young girls speak of their "sweaters" without any of the original athlete's consciousness of unpleasant odors when he thus nicknamed the old-time jersey, but the term is nevertheless objectionable. The manufacturers now propose "knitted underwear"—a change that may be described as difficult of achievement yet desirable.

Hereafter Harvard will make a knowledge of the Bible and Shakespeare compulsory for students who concentrate on ancient or modern languages. It is better, at any rate, to read the former as mere literature than not to read it at all, and in some cases spiritual gain also may accrue.

Elderly folk who like to "keep going" may find inspiration, even if they sagely stop short of actual imitation, in the spectacle of wonderful Sarah Bernhardt at 76 speeding in an aeroplane from Paris to keep a theatrical engagement in London.

Red Blood Gets Housework Done

Supplies Health and Vigor to Women Who Overwork

Full-Blooded People Enjoy Life

If Your Blood is Thin, Take Pepto-Mangan. It Makes Rich Red Blood

Just look around you and notice the kind of people who enjoy life. They are the full-blooded people. Sallow complexioned, dull-eyed people don't have much fun. How can they, with blood that is lacking in life-giving red corpuscles? It takes red blood to do good work, to enjoy life, to be congenial, to be somebody.

If you feel run down and out of sorts most of the time, if your complexion is bad, it is probably due to starved blood. When you get that way you need Pepto-Mangan. It will pick you up and put you in the class of people who step out and do things. With plenty of red corpuscles you enjoy the excitement of life. Whether you work or play you find yourself getting things done and taking real pleasure out of life. You stand on your two feet in good health.

Pepto-Mangan is widely and heartily endorsed by physicians. It is effective and easy to take. Comes in either liquid or tablet form. The medicinal properties are the same. Sold at all drug stores. But be sure you get the genuine Pepto-Mangan with the name "Gude's" on the package. Ask for it by the full name, "Gude's Pepto-Mangan."—Advertisement.

1. When is the sailing season?
2. How did the giant redwood trees of California get their name of Sequoia?
3. How did the raccoon get its name?

Answers in Tomorrow's Nature Notes

Answers to Previous Questions.

1. Why are some flowers and fruits bright colored and others dull? Probably the law of variation is at the bottom of this, just as it is in animals. I don't believe cherries are red or black to attract birds, or plums blue. Poisonous berries are as brilliant as harmless ones. No doubt there is a reason for all these things, if we could only find it. Of course food, environment, climate, have much to do with it all.

2. How can moles be trapped? Different kinds of traps require different usage. Traps work best when set on a runway that is at the surface of the soil or sod, and on a run that seems to be in use, as will be shown when the ridge of earth looks freshly pushed up, or has newly wilted grass or foliage to indicate having been recently disturbed. There are three types of trap commonly in use—harpoon, scissor-jaw, and choker, but space forbids describing them here. Farmer's Bulletin 532 explains all three, and gives habits of eastern moles. Farmer's Bulletin 522, on trapping moles, applies to Pacific Coast conditions.

3. What is the color of the female red-winged blackbird? The female red-wing is unlike her mate, and differs also according to season. In breeding plumage (spring, that is) she has a streaked upper coat, a rim of rusty or dusty color, and the under parts are streaked with dull white. The throat and bend of the wing have faded red, and a salmon pink tinge. In winter the light marking of the upper plumage are more noticeable, and the under parts show a buffy tone.

XXVI.—MICHIGAN

THE French missionaries and fur traders were the first whites to penetrate into Michigan.

Their first visits to this region date back to 1610. It was not until 1668, however, that the first actual settlement was made. This was the mission at Saint Ignace, founded by Father Marquette. Michilicame was established a few years later, and Detroit's growth was slow.

After the French and Indian wars the English took over this territory, and in 1774 it was formally declared a part of Canada. Detroit rapidly grew in importance and during the Revolution was the base of operations for many raids by the British and Indians against the Americans.

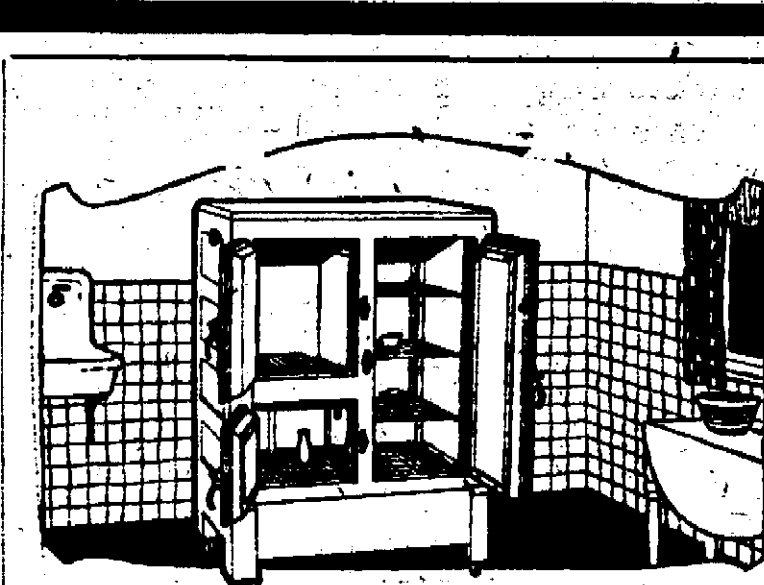

By the terms of the treaty of Paris in 1763 this region became a part of the United States. What is now Michigan, Wisconsin, a part of Minnesota, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio was known as the Northwest Territory. After Ohio was set off as a separate state the Lower Peninsula of Michigan was joined to Indiana territory. In 1805 Michigan became a separate territory with about its present boundaries.

There was, however, a great dispute over a small strip of land in the extreme southern portion which was claimed by Ohio. This almost led to bloodshed, but was finally settled by Michigan releasing her claim to the disputed area and receiving as compensation an addition to the Upper Peninsula. On this basis Michigan was admitted to the Union in 1837 and became the twenty-sixth state.

Michigan has a unique situation. As it is bounded by the three largest of the Great Lakes, and divided into two peninsulas, this gives it a coast line longer in proportion to its area than any of the other states. It is named after Lake Michigan, which is the Algonquian word, "Michigam," meaning "great lake." It is entitled to 15 votes in the electoral college.

By the Michigan Territorial System.

All who read the history in Wednesday's Freeman of Mrs. William H. Brown's untimely death appreciate having her wonderful voice will be highly gratified to know they can be entertained by their former by having Mrs. Brown's collection read which due to be at the Columbia Shop, 215 Park street.

Home From the Party

Did you ever go to a dance, a wedding or one of those "stand up receptions" and you didn't get enough to eat? Like as not you left home without dinner, too, expecting much and receiving nothing.

WHEN you came back home—now, listen—when you came back home about twelve or thirteen o'clock, in the wee small hours, hungry as a wolf, you made a dash for the pantry, and how good those "left overs" did taste.

HERE is a Bohn Sanitor Refrigerator, one of the twenty patterns we are showing. Buy one and stock against all emergencies. With pure white one-piece porcelain lining, surrounded by eight walls of insulation, you will have one of the most sanitary food containers possible to imagine, and "what a grand and glorious feeling" it will be to visit this whenever you receive a call from the inner man.

PRICES so low you will gladly buy. Bohn Refrigerators so serviceable you may buy once in a lifetime. What more can you ask? Come.

Borden's Making Money.
While hard times have cut down the gross sales of milk, the Borden company during 1920 managed, after the payment of $2,318,860 in charges and federal taxes, to earn the comfortable sum of $10.95 a share on the $21,368,100 common stock after the payment of preferred dividends. The company earned $17.80 a share in 1919, but it has reduced its bank loans during the year from $12,750,000 to $7,800,000, according to its report.

Newburgh Has Big Fire.
A storehouse of Patrick Hart, dealer in junk, at Newburgh, was totally destroyed by fire Wednesday morning at 2 o'clock. The building was a large frame structure, fronting on Carpenter avenue a short distance north of Broadway and contained several hundred bales of rags, paper and feathers, which were awaiting shipment. The loss is estimated at $20,000, on which there was no insurance.

N. Y. C. WAGE CUT DENIED BY BOARD

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Chicago, April 7.—The New York Central railroad today was denied the privilege of reducing the wages of its common laborers as asked in a petition recently filed by the road with the United States Railway Labor Board.

The petition asked that the wage cut be authorized immediately pending hearing by the board. The board ruled that the present wage scale must be maintained and set April 15 as the date for a general hearing on applications for wage reductions filed by twenty-six railroads.

MINSTREL WENT FINE

And "Kakeys" Will Repeat It Tonight Downtown.
The Knights of Columbus minstrels entertained a large audience Wednesday evening at St. Joseph's school hall, Wall street, the unanimous verdict of those who saw the show being that it was the best amateur minstrel given in this city in years. All who took part either as comedians, instrumentalists or vocalists showed talent far beyond the expectations of the audience. The minstrels will journey to the downtown section of the city this evening and repeat the show at St. Mary's school hall, and a packed auditorium is predicted as many who saw the entertainment Wednesday evening state they were so delighted last night that they will go again.

AWARDS QUACKENBUSH $75

In Action Over Sale of Cow and Calf's Ownership.

A verdict for defendant in the sum of $75 was returned Wednesday afternoon in the case of Mason and Samuel Busch against Joseph Quackenbush, an action brought in county court by the Busch brothers to recover $25, the value of a calf which they alleged was due them. The defendant entered a counterclaim alleging that the cow which he bought from the plaintiffs was not the cow he agreed to take and that the cow was worthless as a dairy cow. He further alleged that he had not agreed to give back the calf from this cow.

At the conclusion of the case, court went into recess until this morning at 10 o'clock.

TRACE BIRDS BY USE OF ANKLETS

Habits of Our Feathered Friends
Discovered by American Bandring Society.

20,000 ALREADY ARE MARKED

Incredible Wing Mileage Is Revealed
In Some of the Reports—New Facts
About Domestic Relations of Jenny Wren and Husband.

New York.—The habits of birds, the age they attain, the dispersal or distribution of their young, their mating customs, the strength of the homing instinct, the consistency with which migrant birds return to given areas in their winter range, routes followed by individual birds, and even polygamy—these and countless other problems the American Bird Banding association seeks to solve by methods that leave no opportunity for questioning the accuracy of the data.

The several hundred members of the association have for 12 years been conducting their research on a large scale in the western hemisphere, and European societies whose aims are identical with those of the American workers have been operating since 1898. These bodies of investigators pursue their experiments by the use of rings, bands of tags, each bearing an inscription or return address and a serial number. The bands are usually made of aluminum and are manufactured in about a dozen different sizes to fit the legs of all birds, from the smallest warbler to the clumsy pelican and the mighty eagle.

Fifty-eight thousand of these bands have so far been made for the American Bird Banding association, and approximately 20,000 have been placed by members on the legs of native wild birds. Each ring is stamped with the words, "Notify Am. Museum, N. Y." and following this, on one reverse side of the band, is a serial number. At the time the band is placed on the bird the bander records on a standard file card all information relating to the operation. These data include the number of the band, the name of the bird, its age (whether nestling, fledgling or adult), locality, date, name of bander and remarks. The bird, having been thoroughly "catalogued," is sent on its way.

Long Migrations Recorded.

Workers for the association have carried bands into the remotest regions. As members of scientific and exploring parties they have placed the tags on birds in Alaska, Greenland, Labrador, and even in the antarctic a thousand miles from Cape Horn. A young robin, banded in its nest on the lonely shores of Great Slave lake, in the Northwest territory of Canada, has been reported from Louisiana, more than 2,000 miles away; a Massachusetts tern, or sea swallow, has been recovered a similar distance from its birthplace, in the waters off the Venezuelan coast, and a chimney swift, a bird less than six inches long, has been recorded at its New Hampshire summer home after three seasonal journeys to South America, involving almost incredible wing mileage, the minimum distance covered having been 18,000 miles.

Aside from the birds which are systematically trapped, wild birds, either dead or alive, fall into human hands in a variety of ways.

The longest period record thus far turned in has been produced by a common crow, which was banded in the nest at Berwyn, Pa., May 17, 1914, and shot while stealing chickens on the sixth anniversary of the date of banding, May 17, 1920, at Phoenixville, Pa., only eight miles from the site of its birth. The inscription on the aluminum band worn by this bird is as legible today as it was when received from the maker, notwithstanding the six years of rough treatment under all weather conditions. One of the most astounding details of bird life brought out by banding has to do with the domestic relations of Jenny Wren and her songful husband.

Wren Is Fickle.

Wrens habitually raise two large families in rapid succession each season, and in these circumstances it would naturally be thought the head of the establishment would give his undivided attention to his household. Not so, however, with an Ohio house wren, who, the moment his first hatch of offspring was on the wing, ruthlessly abandoned his little brown wife and, moving off less than a hundred yards, created his second family with a new found mate. This phenomenal fickleness might never have been suspected had it not been for the numbered rings used on all of the characters involved.

Another house wren with a history in the little old woman who lived in a shoe. She and her husband and their 13 children appeared in two installments were all banded. No word has ever been heard from the children since they left home, but a year later a wren was seen at the old "home" again, with a banner on his leg, but no mate was seen. The observer is left wondering if perhaps there is not a wren home somewhere in the South of the total of 20,000 birds banded approximately 800,000 in 2 years, there are far too many birds and additional records are being received from time to time.

Only Cause of Bird Poisoning.

When poisoning or apprehension is never required to drive, condemn, run or any chemical. The only cause is bacteria. A wild new way of cleaning with a sterilizing spray has been devised, while a remedy and may be perfectly harmless.

Paul Mann.

Though only eight years old, Paul Mann, a Washington, D. C., youngster, has succeeded in doing what persons many times his age have failed to do. He got up all the White House guards and smoke with the president. It happened Easter Monday while thousands of Washington youngsters were enjoying the egg rolling fest on the White House lawn. The section of the lawn adjacent to the White House, for the day was turned off and guards were placed to see that no one entered the Executive Mansion. Little Paul had a box Easter egg decorated with the coat of arms of the United States which he wanted to present to the great Harding. He watched a chance and when the president stepped out of the door, a crowd of folks, including the president's children, lined up under the foggy sky in hand, and congratulated the guards in the door. The president shook hands with Paul, accepted the gift and the great boy was happy.

The many friends of Mrs. W. J. Mann, a Washington, D. C., youngster, will be glad to know a recording of her wonderful story can be obtained on a Columbia record at the Columbia Store, 228 Park street. Advertisement.

TEXAS RANCHMAN DOWNS 'CON MEN'

Norfleet Spends $18,000 Trailing Them, but Feels That It Is Worth It

ONE LIVES UP TO HIS NAME

Fury Fute Up Bitter Fight, but the Ranchman Proves to Be Something of a Fighter Himself—Saved by His Automobile.

Fort Worth, Tex.—Frank Norfleet, a ranchman of West Texas, delivered Joe Fury into the hands of the local police here, the third of a trio of confidence men to be run down by Norfleet, who they forced out of $48,000 on a bogus oil stock deal about a year ago. One of the other two committed suicide in jail in Washington; the other is under a ten-year sentence.

Resident losing the $48,000, Norfleet spent $18,000 trailing the swindlers over the country. His chase after them was full of thrills.

Determined to bring to justice the man who had swindled me," he said, "I began a hunt that took me through 18 states and Old Mexico. I took my son, Pete, out of the West Texas Normal at Canyon to assist me in the hunt and it was he who located the man at Jacksonville. Upon arriving there we separated and registered at different hotels to watch for Fury. I had never seen the man, but had studied a picture of him, and a few minutes after registering at his hotel Fury emerged from an elevator. The boy telephoned me and I came to him. We followed our man into a restaurant, and there I placed him under arrest, following a desperate struggle.

Norfleet exhibited his finger, showing where Fury bit him during the struggle. He also showed other minor injuries, scratches and bruises. "At the police station Fury denied that he had ever seen me," Norfleet continued. "The officers asked me what authority I had and how did I know he was the right man. I told them I was a Texas officer and I had a warrant for Fury's arrest, that I had Fury's police picture—and, above all, I knew he was the man who had taken my money. I told them that he was my man and that I was going to take him."

"They asked me by what further right I expected to take him. I pulled out the regulation papers already honored by the governor of Florida. The officers looked at the papers. 'We can't do anything for you, Fury,' they said; 'you are a prisoner bound for Texas.'"

It Took Four Policemen.

"Believe me, those words sure tickled me. I wanted to rush him away. I was afraid that attempts might be made to have him released or to detain him through a writ of habeas corpus. I decided to take Fury 13 miles from Jacksonville and get on a train. He fought. It took four big policemen to finally lock the handcuffs on him. Pete and I put Fury in the automobile and started to go the 13 miles. As we neared the little station the train was almost ready to leave. Fury again started to fight. His hands were in the cuffs, but he picked and scratched on much that the train pulled out before we got him in. We put him back in the car and drove back to Jacksonville.

"We heard Fury's lawyers were getting busy. We knew they might get him out on some technicality. Therefore we dodged 'em. We took Fury to a private home. We chained him in bed. We waited there until train time.

Fury Jumps From Train.

"We were nearing the end of a long trail. I had faith in our chance to return him to Texas. So far there had been no bloodshed. That is why I did not use my pistol. Fury had kicked and hurt me all he could. He was a madman.

"After we had put him on the train leaving Jacksonville he tried to grow friendly. Striding by the window in the drawing room he made a leap through the window. The train was moving about 30 miles an hour. He dashed through the window like a porcupine doc darted into its hole. We stopped the train as quickly as we could. Fury had been picked up by train crew. He offered the members of the crew $2000 to hide him. They put him on a switch engine and started back to Jacksonville with him. He was still handcuffed by his handcuffs. He claimed he could not walk for the injury he received in jumping from the train.

"Another switch engine took Pete and myself back to Jacksonville, and we again took charge of our prisoner. Fury said he could not stand the pain from his leg and did not want to be put on the train again. I told him that I had ridden the plains horseback with my leg in as bad condition as that. I told him we were going to take him."

Dodged Habeas Corpus.

"Upon arriving in New Orleans, Norfleet said, he still retained the possibility of being served with legal papers which might cause Fury to be released on bond or which might delay the trip back to Texas.

"I was careful where I went. We had to spend part of Sunday in New Orleans. The papers would have to be served on me, because I had received the regulation papers. I went to church. I knew the officers would not go there to find me. And I heard one of the seven swindlers I overheard. I left my son at the police station to help watch Fury.

Norfleet said that he and his son were joined by special officers from Fort Worth before leaving New Orleans with their prisoner. Fury was brought to Fort Worth and jailed there to await trial on the charges on an indictment found against him by the Tarrant county grand jury.

"Before we reached New Orleans," Norfleet said, "Fury told me he was sorry he had not had me killed as he was planned to do. I think that was just winter. I spent several months in Florida then trying to locate him. I heard of another false claim scheme being worked there. I played him I would be the victim. The man operating the scheme took me to a house. They were working on me similar to the way I was worked on in Fort Worth. I thought I might see Fury there. After I reached the place where I was to give up my money I knew I would have to stall.

Saved by His Automobile.

"None of the men I wanted were there, and so I began to scheme to get out. I said: 'Why, gentlemen, this is Sunday. I cannot plan money on Sunday. That started trouble. One of them grabbed me. I think it had been planned to kill me should anything happen.

"My wife, before I left home, had told me not to let them get at my back. She believed that I could take care of them if I could keep them in front of me. She thinks I am a good shot. She has seen me shoot hawks on the fly and kill wolves while they were running. So when the man grabbed me I threw him in front of me. I grabbed my automobile. Then I got out my .45. I told them just to start something and I would finish. And that is how I got out of that."

According to Norfleet, when Fury was abusing him in New Orleans Fury exclaimed: "You have ruined the best deal I have ever started." The deal to which Fury referred was to have taken place at Jacksonville, where he was arrested.

HOW U. S. DIVIDES TAX FUND

Biggest Hole in Dollar, 66 Cents, Is Made for Post War, Says Bureau Chief.

Washington.—Herbert D. Brown, chief of the United States bureau of efficiency, has figured out on the basis of appropriations of congress for this fiscal year, just where each dollar of taxes paid by citizens of the United States goes. Here is how Mr. Brown works it out:

Out of each dollar of taxes paid the government expends for past wars, including pensions, compensations, interest on the public debt, and expenses incident to federal control of railroads, 63 cents; for present defense, army and navy and fortifications, 20 cents; for peace time activities, excluding the postoffice department, which is virtually self-supporting, 12 cents.

As the appropriations for the fiscal year are not yet completed by congress no estimate concerning them can be made, but Mr. Brown believes the proportions above indicated will not vary more than a few cents.

SUES DENTIST FOR $50,000

Widow of Suicide After Taking Gas Demands Damages Alleging Carelessness.

New York.—Mrs. Burton Skeete of Brooklyn has sued in the supreme court to recover $50,000 damages for the death of her husband, a carpenter, who leaped three stories to death from a window of the dental office of Dr. Aloysius Gaffney. Doctor Gaffney is named as defendant in the suit.

Mrs. Skeete alleges that on the day of his death her husband had taken gas in Doctor Gaffney's office. She claims damages because, she says, her husband was not properly guarded when he came from under the influence of the gas, and leaped from the window before he had fully regained possession of his faculties.

77 AND NEVER HAD A SHAVE

Oregon, Born in Log Cabin and Recked in Sugar Trough, Never Saw Mirror.

Lancaster, Ohio.—Seventy-seven years old and he's never had a shave in his life—never even sat in a barber chair.

This is the boast of Salem Bassett, Fairfield county farmer, living south of Rinkel village.

"I was born in a log cabin and my cradle was a sugar trough," says Bassett, claiming two other distinctions. He has never seen moving pictures and has seldom had occasion to see railroad trains.

Whenever his hair becomes uncomfortably long, his wife applies the scissors.

College Girls Sigger.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Women are getting taller and heavier, according to Dr. R. Tait McKenzie, director of physical education at the University of Pennsylvania. "Statistics of women's colleges covering a period of sixty years show the average college girl of today is an inch taller than the college girl of 1860," he said. "These statistics also prove the modern girl is six or seven pounds heavier."

Wanted "Jewelry" Currency.

Jimmy received two dollar bills for Christmas and was quite excited about it. He wanted to put them in his small savings bank, but didn't understand how to do it. So he ran to his father and exclaimed: "Daddy, daddy, will you please give me two jewelry dollars for these?"

Mouse-Eating Toad.

The voracity of the toad in devouring earthworms, beetles, crickets, and other creeping things, is well known, but it is an extremely rare occurrence for the animal to take a living mouse. Still, a circumstantial account is given of a toad at Portsmouth, England that followed a mouse, not quite full grown, and suddenly drew it into its mouth. The mouse showed the dazed and fascinated signs that it exhibits in the presence of snakes and larger lizards. Dr. J. A. Boulenger has stated that he offered a tame toad very small mice, and they were eaten with avidity, and he believed that a toad will take any sort of live prey that it is able to swallow.

How to Be Handy With Ax.

Nearly all rural Tasmanian men are fairly dexterous with the ax. In the back blocks it is a necessity of life, one of the settler's first jobs being to construct a hut or house out of the growing timber surrounding the site. On farms fencing posts are sure to be required, and splitting them out of tree trunks still demands skill as well as energy, though the older post and rail fence, the all-wood rabbitproof fence, and the "chopping block" log fence still in vogue in heavily timbered districts required much more nerve ax work than the post and wire fence now generally erected.

Alexander Hamilton's Children.

Alexander Hamilton married Miss Elizabeth Schuyler, December 14, 1780. They had six sons: Philip, born January 22, 1782; died November 24, 1801, from a duel wound; Alexander (soldier), born May 16, 1786; died August 2, 1875; James Alexander (lawyer), born April 14, 1783; died September 24, 1878; John Church (lawyer), born August 22, 1792; died July 28, 1882; William Steven, born August 4, 1797; died August 7, 1880; and Philip (jurist), born June 1, 1802; died July 9, 1884.

Work Done by Leaves of Trees.

A single leaf of an apple tree has 100,000 pores through each one of which water is continually passing off into surrounding atmosphere. There are 7,000 leaves on a 60-foot elm tree. These leaves, if spread out, would cover a surface of 200,000 square feet, or five acres. Over seven tons of water, in the form of vapor, pass out of these leaves into the air within a summer day.

The Secret Is Out.

"Why does a woman's hat cost so much more than a man's? Surely the trimming can't account for more than a fraction of the difference." "Certainly not, but you must remember that it costs more to sell a hat to a woman. A man seldom takes up more than two minutes of the saleswoman's time, while a woman will keep the entire sales staff busy for half a day."

Discouraging reply. A message from Prague states that a method has been discovered of making more difficult the passing of forged bank notes, says a Copenhagen correspondent to the London Telegraph. The invention consists of imbedding in the paper on which bank notes are printed quantities of fine steel and nickel particles. Such paper responds to the attraction of a magnet, and any one can thus easily test the genuineness of a note.

"THE LIGHT FROM ABOVE"

"Say, dad," said son, the other night,
"Why can't we have electric light
I'm tired of luggin' this oil can
Up 'th' street to the grocery man."
Dad then looked around and grinned,
He knew his son just had him planned.
"We can, my lad, the light is better,
I'll write CARL MILLER & SON a letter."

In a day or so, or perhaps better,
Sure enough we got a letter.
It started in to tell us that
They lived in a neat little six-room flat.
"How much will it cost," it read "to install
A light in each room and one in the hall.
I've promised to give my family a treat,
This sure is one that is hard to beat."

We answered the letter and told him that
"Twould cost fifty dollars to wire the flat.
He called at our office the very next night
Signed a light contract, our price was alright.

INSANE MAY BE CURED BY MUSIC

Pianist Boguslawski Evokes First Response From Many Stu-
porous Patients.

DOCTORS WATCH EXPERIMENT

After Two Years' Research Musicians
Obtain Remarkable Results From
Music in Treating Patients
From Mental Stupor.

Chicago, March 19.—The Italian woman sat huddled in the corner, her thin shoulders shaking. The color came to her bleached skin. She worked her fingers over her face, over the walls; she tore frantically at her fingers with her teeth. The intermezzo of "Cavalleria Rusticana" ended. The woman kneeling in the corner, Adeline M., mugged down. A nurse leaned over her and remarked:

"She says: 'Oh, my baby! Baby needs a mother. When am I going home?' Say, you know, that's the first time she's spoken since they brought her here. She refused to nurse her baby."

"Yes, yes," she moaned, "I have a heart—everybody is happy—baby—father—oh, don't forget me." And she vibrated to the rush of the music, while her mouth twisted into a grotesque smile.

Tries Music as Aid to Insane.
It was at the state hospital for the insane in Dunning. Surrounded by the "stuporous" or depressed types of insane patients, Mr. Boguslawski sat at a piano running through the emotional gamut of music. A small audience of alienists watched the experiment.

Can insanity be cured through music? After two years of research, Mr. Boguslawski claimed remarkable results from music on such cases. He has been performing experiments at the Dunning institution. It is said, for the last month. He has been holding weekly "musical clinics."

Psychiatrists and health department officials, as well as Chicago physicians, are watching the experiments at Dunning. At each "music therapeutic" test, as Mr. Boguslawski has named his psychiatric program, Dr. D. B. Rotman of the hospital staff has collected data for presentation to the American medical profession for discussion.

"These experiments are the first of their kind ever conducted in the United States," said Dr. Rotman. "They are highly interesting. There is a universal potency to music; it appeals to the subtle elements of the mind. Patients long considered dull are aroused by this music to the expression of emotional display. The effect on that Italian woman, for instance, was overwhelming. Now we have found a response, she may be curable."

A Revelation, Says Official.
"This is a revelation to me," exclaimed Dr. E. A. Foley, assistant superintendent of the institution, watching the pianist endeavor to arouse the patients from their mental torpor with many varieties of melody.

"I have studied this for two years; I know it will work," replied Mr. Boguslawski. "I don't claim to be able to cure insanity, but I can relieve much mental distress. Probably a third of the 150,000 insane in the United States can be greatly improved by 'music therapy.'"

One of the cases studied was Mary K., an Armenian refugee. She was made insane by war horrors. She saw her mother, father and brother slain before her eyes. The Chicago funeral march today brought her to her knees in mumbled prayer. Tragic memories apparently were revived. She fell on the floor, sobbing.

"Nostalgia," explained Boguslawski. "An intelligent approach. A relief through the caress of sympathetic music for post-up distress, suppression, imagined fears. Music is the scalpel which help open the wound. After that it's a case for physicians, not musicians."

Accidentally Killed Her Goldfish; Took Poison

Mrs. Charles Madden, thirty years old, of College Springs, Ia., changed the water for her bowl of six goldfish. She thought the well water too cold and added some from the hot bottle. The water was too hot and the fish died instantly.

Mrs. Madden became hysterical and when her husband returned home she swallowed two capsules of carbolic acid.

Of the Ancient Wren

The wren of the ancient world does not exist in a bird that can be named, but it is a product of man's mind. The wren of the day of the great Greek and Roman authors is that it is the perfection of good sense. In the first place, said John Stuart Mill, they never are a wren without a meaning or a goal.

The sentences were chosen because of the extreme pains they took with their speech; almost all moderns are prone to believe they do not. The great moderns could express a thought as perfectly in a few words or sentences as they did not need to add any more.

Golden Flower Hat

To get the product of genius you are never done. Work done must be constantly subjected to revision. Every thing it is done over there is opportunity for corrections or additions. Sometimes you will have to start the whole thing over your study leads you deeper into truth. But what of that? The work you put on it will be forgotten in the joy of a more perfect production. Every revision shows where improvement is possible and the very working over makes the final result the more perfect. Young men have seldom patience enough to work in a thing until it's put into its best possible shape. But the idea of perfection is never satisfied. To him work is never finished. To him the ideal is the end to work for. Anything less than that is little better than an imitation.

SON REPORTED DEAD MAY LIVE

Mother's Heart Still Hopes for Return of "Big Mike."

BULLET MAKES MIND BLANK

Mix-up in Names Leads Woman to Believe That Son, Reported Buried in France, Will Be Restored to Her—Tales of Buddha Give Reason to Think He Is Wandering Around the Country, a Victim of Lost Memory.

Hope that springs eternal in human breasts sent its thrilling message to the mother heart of Mrs. Little V. Michael of Bonhomie, Md., when the mail man handed her an official photograph of the grave in France where her blue-eyed giant soldier son lay, sleeping with the heroes of the great war.

Across the card ran the legend: "Alvin A. Michel, killed in action, Oct. 17, 1918," but, all sorts of names were mixed up. And in that moment there was born to the brave-hearted woman a hope that alone could kill that she would see again the six foot, curly-headed youngster who marched so gallantly out to battle when his country called.

Writes but Knows No Address. Perhaps you who read may help her vision to fulfillment. For there may be wandering somewhere in the country a lad from whose mind the impact of a German bullet swept the ties of memory, yet who writes always to a mother he knows not how to address.

Mrs. Michael has carried her search far, and here and there has found tales of "Big Mike" as his "buddies" knew him, which filled her with tearful pride. But also she found conflicting accounts in the official records of his death and burial and strange reports at hospitals she visited of a patient long treated and whose description tallied closely with that of her son, but who was known as "Big Tom Hinegan."

"Big Tom," too, has vanished, and until she has found him Mrs. Michael will not discard the hope that he may be her son, his identity lost in the crash of the bullet that seared his head.

Boys who fought with "Big Mike" told his mother of the great "babe" in France, when man after man toppled over from exhaustion and finally "Big Mike" himself went down in jangling pile. When they examined him, they found the rifles and equipment of a squad of men strung about his huge frame, carried to some weaker comrades.

Struck Down by Bullet. They told her, too, of the night when a bullet struck him down, but here there was a difference in the tales that set the mother's heart strings fluttering anew. Some of them said "Big Mike" had laid two days under a blanket, there in the heat of the battle, given up for dead. But later signs of life were seen, and he went back on the weary road to the hospital.

At one hospital officials thought they recognized a photograph of "Big Mike" shown by the eager mother as that of "Big Tom," who also had stopped a bullet with his head. It was "Big Tom," they said, who wrote endlessly to his mother, but knew not where to send the letters.

And in Washington kindly officials poured over the records to aid the search. They found a queer tangle, showing that "Big Mike" apparently had been buried by regimental chaplains. Once in the honor graveyard at Conspicuous and again at Meuse.

There was a difference, too, in identification numbers, and the mother came home, weary, dejected, but still with high hope in her heart that time would give back her son.

LARYNGAPHONE IS LATEST

Britons Place Transmitter to Throat Instead of Mouth.

A new telephone device already in actual use in London is the laryngaphone, a transmitter in which a disk is placed against the throat of the speaker and the sound is transmitted by the vibration of the vocal cords. It is suitable for use in noisy factories and workrooms where the ordinary telephone mouthpiece transmitter would pick up the other sounds in the room and so prevent conversation. In appearance the laryngaphone resembles the ordinary telephone except that there is a smooth rounded rubber disk instead of a mouthpiece. The result is the same and the messages are received in the ordinary speaking voice.

Missed No Trips in Twenty Years.

By letter mail carrier, of Kennebec, Me., entered the government service 20 years ago and in all that time has not failed to make his regular trip for a single day. At first he was rural carrier and for 18 days in succession when the roads were impassable for vehicles, he walked his 22-mile route.

Co-Operate to End Automobile Theft.

With a view to coping with automobile bandits and other criminals operating in the metropolitan district, Police Commissioner Dwight has called a conference of heads of police departments of 40 cities and communities within 100 miles of New York city.

Gymnastic Dancing Passing.

The waltz of our grandmother's days—but with a fascinating touch of "theatricality"—has come back to our weary ballrooms. It became all the rage—after much opposition—when the Czar Alexander danced it at Almack's in 1911. And since the Prince of Wales likes it and dances it today a new vogue for the waltz is assured. Dancing evidently is to be less gymnastic and more sentimental. Anxious mothers will not repine. The dreamy waltz was a match maker in their day and perhaps it will be in ours—don't don Daily Mail.

Burbank Native of Massachusetts.

Luther Burbank, the originator of flowers, fruits and vegetables, was born at Lancaster, Mass., March 7, 1849 and began his first experiments on a farm of twenty acres near Lunenburg, Mass., when he was 22 years old. A warmer climate than that of New England being necessary for continuous research, Mr. Burbank moved in 1876 to Santa Rosa, Cal., where he now lives.

Near the close of the World War he was promoted to the rank of colonel.

A Great Jewel. We publish beautiful editions of books to be sure and thousands of people enjoy them, but in ancient times the expense that we spread thinly over a thousand volumes was all compressed into one, and it became a great jewel of a book—a heavy folio worth its weight in gold—Hawthorne.

WILL LONG REMEMBER VISIT

Inhabitants of Old Providence Island Astonished by the Appearance of American Seaplanes.

One wonders what the inhabitants of Old Providence Island thought when seven American seaplanes, with their gleaming wings and motors that mark these powerful devices, swooped down on her tiny harbor. The report of the seven fliers is epic in its simplicity.

"Some of them seemed scared," said they. "They had never seen an airplane before."

Life in Old Providence, as it appeared to the marooned sea fliers, is primitive in its simplicity. The island itself is four miles long, lying in the midst of the Caribbean sea at a distance of 290 miles from Colon. In its center a wooded eminence rises to what seemed the majestic height of 1,100 feet.

The harbor is too tiny and too shallow to permit the entrance of big ships, and so the island's only connection with the outside world is through the semi-occasional visits of a little yawl, which carries freight and passengers each way. Sometimes the yawl gets to Old Providence once in three weeks. Sometimes it doesn't. Its schedule depends on freight, the whim of its master, the winds, the convenience of the day. "Usually it brings the mails," said the Old Providential, "Sometimes it doesn't."

Wealth and Happiness.

Much of the anxiety and care of these days is needless and springs from an overemphasis of the amount of property needed for happiness. Everything in our country tends to stimulate men toward excessive ambition. Our climate is rich in oxygen, and is an irritant to work. The undeveloped resources of our land appeal to cupid—eager at a time when we begin to realize that these treasures should be conserved for our descendants. The stories of successful men are exploited with endless variations in magazines that teach the art of getting on instead of getting up. Little by little young men feel that it is a disgrace to live modestly. Ambition is a virus in the blood. Undue ambition is poisoning the springs of contentment. Youth has forgotten Cincinnatus, who has not "to fly too high toward the sun lest the flame consume the wings."—Newell Dwight Hillis.

Coal Prospects.

According to the estimate of the United States geological survey, one fourth of our anthracite is gone; but we have enough left to last us 100 years at the present rate of consumption. We have in this country enough coal of other kinds to last 4,000 years at the present rate of consumption.

EX-KAISER WRITES OF CAUSES OF WAR

Cites Historical Data to Show an Alleged World Plot Against Germany.

Former Emperor William of Germany has written for private distribution a book by which he attempts to show that England was responsible for the World War. In the volume he has collected historical facts and data relative to international agreements between all countries involved in the war from 1894 to 1914, and these have been marshaled in parallel columns by Count Hohenloer, says the newspaper Het Volk.

The ex-kaiser declares England's responsibility for the war centered in her "plot to isolate Germany," and refers to "the mobilization of England banks in April, 1914, preparations for war by the British fleet in June, the same year, and the Russian mobilization of forces on July 15."

"Thus," says the newspaper, "the former emperor tries to find adherents for the theory that allied mobilization made it impossible for Germany to prevent the war."

The former monarch worked on the book many months, carefully getting up a table of dates, intending to show merely by their marshaling that the world's history during the 20 years leading up to the war showed better than comment a world plot against Germany. Among other things, the book is said to cite the American-German-British incident in Manila bay during the Spanish-American war, in which Admiral Dewey's action in forcing the Germans to observe neutrality was backed up by the British fleet in the bay, as showing a long alliance between the British and Americans.

French, British and Russian treaties are cited by dates and quotations, together with incidents such as that of Agadir, Morocco.

Knowledge that the book was being prepared has been current in Holland for some time and the Het Volk reports that a copy of the manuscript fell into the hands of one of the former emperor's Dutch acquaintances.

Severely copies of the book were printed and distributed for private reading to those the author thought he could trust. Among the recipients were several royalties, including the Dutch Prince Consort, each of whom was warned the former emperor would be extremely displeased if the book were made public.

DANCED HIMSELF TO DEATH

Young Frenchman Chose to Die Rather Than Miss Waltz With Sweetheart.

The great love which Gustave Treboux, son of a rich French banker, bore for the girl he once had hoped to marry led him to choose death in a last waltz with her.

Treboux was an inmate of a sanatorium at Leyrin, France, and the girl, Mlle. Germaine Ledoux, came to see him as he lay in bed. Mlle. Ledoux told him that evening there was to be a dance at the hotel nearby. He asked the doctor if he could waltz with the girl he loved.

"Yes, if you want to commit suicide," was the doctor's reply.

Treboux said nothing, but in the evening he got out of bed, dressed, called for Germaine and went to the dance. He waited till the orchestra began to play a waltz, took the girl in his arms, and together the two joined the dancers.

As the dance ended Treboux staggered and fell on a sofa, blood pouring from his mouth. As the girl bent over him he fell back dead.

WANTS A CHANCE

Boy Who Is Only 21 Years Old Has Spent Ten Years in Jail.

"Ten years of my life in jail, Judge, and I'm only 21 years old now," Robert McKenzie, no home, told Judge Cotter of Detroit while he explained his plight. "They don't give me a chance to get started. As soon as I get out they send me back."

McKenzie was found sleeping in the reporters' room at police headquarters and was brought in as a vagrant. He was released from the House of Correction recently and had been unable to find work or a home.

He told of a sentence of eight years in a reform school and of many sentences for minor offenses that followed closely on each other. Judge Cotter adjourned the case to make a further investigation to see what machinery of the court can be used to give McKenzie the chance he says he missed.

MONTE CARLO IS RUN FOR CASINO

Everything Is Conducted on a Commercial Basis.

MAKE GAMBLING A BUSINESS

Nothing Which Can Conflict With the Casino or Detract From the Glamour of It Is Permitted by Authorities—All Its Surroundings Are Made as Seductive as Possible—You Come to Win Money, You Will Probably Lose It.

A correspondent of the London Times, writing from Monte Carlo, says whether it be full or empty, Monte Carlo is always the same incredible, artificial, tantalizing place. It has been reasonably argued that it does not exist; because it is impossible that it can exist—impossible that a town so solid yet so ephemeral, all rock and seafront, could anywhere arise merely to give people an opportunity to lose money at a gaming table. The town has been well compared to a morgue; so white and new made it is, and its inside so sweet and stuffy and just a bit unwholesome.

Carved as it is out of the face of the hills, there are spots in it from which as you look upward and see it rising cloudlike, tier on tier, up the mountain slope, it is all pure, fantastic scene painting. They cannot be true, those hotels and villas built each seemingly on the roof of the one below. They can be only lath and canvas and cardboard. And the beauty of the public gardens, the cleanliness of the rock-ribbed streets, the luxury of the shops! Kubla Khan might have dreamed such things, but it is absurd to suppose that they could, in this commercial age, have come to be true.

Business Proposition.

Not that Monte Carlo is not commercial to its very foundation. It is fairground with business principles—a place of all delights run by a trading company. The Casino is essentially a great commercial enterprise, very shrewdly conducted. It sells—just as over a counter—excitement and hope and pleasure and dreams of wealth. And it makes you pay for them on a strictly calculated, cold mathematical basis. Nothing else counts. Everything in Monte Carlo is planned to feed the Casino; all roads lead to it; all its surroundings are made as seductive as possible; nothing which can conflict with the Casino or detract from the glamour of it is permitted. There are those who think that in this matter the directorate sometimes overreaches itself.

Nothing is so badly needed in Monte Carlo or would contribute so much to the contentment of the English community (who are the best patrons of the tables), as a good English club. One is not permitted, lest people should sit there and play bridge or otherwise reasonably enjoy themselves when they might be at Monte Carlo losing money. It was ostensibly to satisfy the demand for a club that the Sporting Club was established. It is merely an extra sale of the Casino, with dining attachments rather more glittering and in which one can lose money a trifle faster. To provide it as a substitute, to people who were asking for a real club is like giving to one who orders tea and toast sherbet and sugared almonds instead.

Want Real Club.

And English people who know Monte Carlo best are agreed that if there were a real club there, while on the one hand it would retain in Monte Carlo hundreds of visitors every season who now go elsewhere after a week or two from sheer ennui, it would not interfere with the patronage of the tables, but would increase it. No normal man, however much he loves gambling, can spend more than a limited time day after day in the atrocious atmosphere of the tables. He must go somewhere in the interval. It would make him more content to stay in Monte Carlo and continue to lose money if he could go to a comfortable, friendly club. Also, he would possibly have more money to lose, for the streets and restaurants of Monte Carlo are very expensive places to be turned loose in.

That, after all, is the essence of Monte Carlo. You may go there hoping to win money. You will probably lose it. You will certainly spend it. What place is there for anything so sane—so merely reasonable—as an English club in this world of sugar castles and sunlight, music, dancing, ribbons and flowers? You must take it for what it is, with all its fascinations—a town unlike any other that ever was or will be—curiously beautiful in its own way, with the glitter

Candlemas Day.

The Romans had a day of purification, and in the course of time the second day of February was called the feast of the purification or presentation of Christ in the temple. At the Reformation the ceremonies of Candlemas day were not reduced all at once. Henry VIII proclaimed that "On Candlemas day it shall be declared that the bearing of candles is done in memory of Christ, the spiritual light, whom Simon did prophesy, as it is read in the church that day."

Plant Puzzles Scientists.

The investigating scientist in plant life is seeking to learn why the silver sword plant is found in only two places in the world, one on the high slopes of the Himalaya mountains, the other near the extinct volcano on the island of Maui, Hawaii. The plant is similar to the Spanish bayonet and gets its name from the bright color of its leaves.

DISTURBANCE AND A DISAPPEARANCE

As an aftermath of an investigation in John Doe proceedings, which were instituted on complaint of A. E. Votolski, a butcher of South Rondout, Police Justice Henry E. McKenzie of Port Jervis has issued a warrant against Henry Pardee of that place. Pardee has apparently disappeared as officers have been unable to find him.

In addition to dealing in meats, Votolski also sells some groceries. Some time ago a 100-pound bag of sugar was stolen from his barn, and later another bag of sugar was taken. He heard rumors that various residents of South Rondout had said they knew where the sugar had gone and he applied to Justice McKenzie for a warrant. The latter held a John Doe investigation in the case, and while matters were pending it is claimed that Pardee went to Votolski's house at night and created a disturbance.

The disturbance lasted for half an hour, according to Votolski, and several neighbors, who said that Pardee carried a sword and threatened to run it through Votolski if he dared to come out of doors.

Metacahonts, April 7.—Jacob Freer died at the home of his son, Clarence Freer, on Sunday afternoon. Mr. Freer had been in ill health and had spent the winter with his son. A number of years ago he owned the place now owned by Jason Bell and resided there. Mr. Freer is survived by four daughters and one son, Clarence Freer, also a number of grandchildren. Mr. Freer was well known and liked and sympathy is extended to the bereaved relatives in their hour of sorrow. Mrs. Dunn is herself 83 years old. When more than 80 years old and the young people gathered at their home for a party, Mr. and Mrs. Dunn enjoyed dancing with them as much as the younger ones present and were noted for their serene, happy dispositions, no shadow of trouble having ever marred their more than sixty years together. Mr. Dunn will be missed in the community and by his many friends. He is also survived by three daughters, Mrs. Andrew Krom, Mrs. Charles Rice and Mrs. Norman Elmer, all of Walden and by a number of grandchildren and several sets of grandchildren. MAN HURLED FROM CYCLE INTO CREEK

Motorcycle Brake Broke Coming Down Sleightsburgh Hill—Man in Side Car Leaped Out—Driver Thrown High in Air, Landing in Water—Both in Hospital.

While a motorcycle was coming down the Sleightsburgh hill this afternoon the brake broke, and a man riding in the side car leaped out, but the driver of the cycle remained in his seat and as the machine swept around the curve leading to the ferry landing the cycle sideswiped an automobile and, diverted from its course, collided with one of the buckets filled with stone that is used to raise and lower the ferry bridge. As the cycle struck the bucket the driver was hurled high into the air, alighting in the waters of the Rondout creek, while the machine, wrecked, remained on the levee.

Captain Charles Van Leuven, and Edward Schumaker, of the Skillipot, and Nelson Sleight and Harry Ellis, north of the creek and word was sent out to headquarters here and the ambulance removed both men to the Kingston City Hospital.

At the hospital it was found that the man who jumped was John Torup, and while he is still suffering from the effects of his leap he is apparently not badly injured. The driver of the motorcycle was James Grinrod, and his condition is serious. They are both from Tuckahoe.

The Christian Endeavor, a young people's society, was organized by Rev. Francis E. Clark, pastor of the Wesleyan Congregational church in Portland, Me., on February 2, 1901, about 20 boys and girls met in the pastor's study and pledged themselves to attend and take some part in a weekly prayer meeting and once a month to hold a conversation meeting. Other duties, social, religious, literary, and of various kinds, were assigned to different members. They met with instant acceptance, and today there are more than 2,000 members in the United States and Canada and in other lands.

Long Train.

There were 428,239 tons of coal mined in the United States in 1919, says a correspondence. If all this coal were sent into one train of 300 cars, this train would consist of 13,940,000 cars, and it would take 271,200 years to pull it. This is based on the hauling capacity of the average American engine. This train would be 1,394,000 miles long, and would reach the earth once 13 times in the equator.

Rome, April 7.—The great Vesuvius volcano is in action again today, huge columns of flames and smoke leaping skyward. Tomorrow is the 15th anniversary of the volcano's terrific eruption.

Pittsburghers Will Bark.

After having tried, for a number of years, to get over and around the hills surrounding their city, the residents of Pittsburgh have decided to strike at the heart of the difficulty and go through them. Accordingly tunneling operations have been getting under way which, when completed, will result in a double-track line that will accommodate passenger, street car and suburban traffic. Says Popular Mechanics Magazine, "The estimated cost of the undertaking is between $20,000,000 and $30,000,000, and it is expected that two years will be required for its completion. It constitutes an unprecedented, and, in many respects, a unique, engineering feat, and has given satisfaction to all who are interested in the work of great engineering."

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, April 7.—The stock market opened steady today but the list became reactionary immediately after the start and the leading issues sold off from fractions to over 1 point. Steel common sold at 81½. Crucible dropped 1 point to 84½ and Baldwin locomotive 1½ to 84½. Mexican Petroleum was in demand, selling up over 2 points to 142, followed by a reaction to 141. Studebaker and Chandler both fell a point, the former selling at 77 and the latter at 79½.

Although some of the bear traders made repeated efforts during the first hour to cause liquidation in industrials, their operations failed to meet with any success and instead of outside selling being induced there was a pronounced increase in commission house demand, especially from western sources. Fluctuations in the foreign market were narrow, with little net change in the list generally.

The alternating movements which were noted in the stock market generally during the first half of the day developed into a heavy tone in the midafternoon. Central Leather sold down to 31, a loss of 2 points in all and late in the afternoon pressure was shown against International Harvester, which dropped over 2 points to 85½. U. S. Steel after its rally to 81½, sold off to 81½.

The market closed irregular today; government bonds unchanged; railway and other bonds irregular.

DAY OF THE SAIL NOT OVER

Many Years Likely to Elapse Before Steam is Without Rival on the High Seas.

Is the day of sail over? A few years ago many people would have answered that question in the affirmative. Square-riggers, there is no doubt, are decreasing in numbers; but recent years have witnessed a remarkable revival in the building of sailing craft. Most of the new sailing vessels are fitted with internal combustion engines for use in calm or contrary winds, the sails being brought into use in favorable weather. And the sailing ship of the future will most probably be the fore-and-aft type familiar for many years on both coasts of the American continent, especially in the lumber trade.

They have a stark, austere beauty of their own, with their four or five tall masts, their great sails, and their usual carved sheer and low freeboard. They are considered remarkably handy vessels, especially adapted to sailing close-hauled, that is, as near to the wind as possible. And since sail must always remain the cheapest form of propulsion, it would seem likely that—especially since the coming of the internal combustion engine—the threatened disappearance of the sailing ship from the seas will never come to pass.

APPEALED TO HIGHER COURT

Decree From Judge Culp Enabled German Engineer to Laugh at Government Regulations.

If a government refuses a passport there is a higher authority that may be appealed to in certain cases, as demonstrated by the recent experience of a German engineer. "This authority is no less a passport than Dan Cupid himself."

The German engineer was preparing to marry and the wedding day was set. The Paris Journal des Debats states. At the last moment it was discovered that the bride-to-be had not obtained a passport, and as she lived in a neighboring country there was no possible way for her to get into Germany at the hour appointed for the ceremony.

Rather than postpone the happy event, however, the couple devised an ingenious plan. They had the wedding party gather at the frontier, and the marriage service was read while the bridegroom stood on German soil and the bride on the other side of the line. When the ceremony was over the groom reached out his hand, down his bride over the line into Germany and drove away in a motor coach.

Fruit was sent in by E. S. Craft & Son, Mrs. Rice, Miss Mettill, Mrs. Hattie Bonstedt, Miss Lillian Bonstedt, John McKelvey, a special lot of twelve dozen oranges coming from Mrs. G. W. Palmer. Cakes came from Mrs. G. Low, candy from Mrs. Alex. Speers, a plant from Mrs. Bishop, a large box of chocolates from Ralph Mann, and cranberry sauce from Mrs. Ella Short and Mrs. J. Davis.

The ice cream for the nurses' Easter dinner was a gift from C. V. A. Dicker, and Mrs. Donovan sent in ice cream for the patients.

A very much appreciated gift was nine dozen eggs from Mr. Mrs. Lampman. Additional splashes for the wash stands were made by Miss Mary Hoar and Miss Kerr.

So fine has been the response for volunteers to take in some sewing for the hospital that it is almost impossible to mention all by name. This work is being done in a spirit of service which brings a personal satisfaction to the worker that is its own best reward.

CHANGE IN BOYS' CLASSES AT "Y"

A change is being made in the program and policy of the classes at the Y. M. C. A. for the boys. All activities are being changed from the gymnasium to the swimming pool where a "water gym" will be conducted. A "water gym" is nothing new, simply something old in new dress. The boys will be divided into classes according to ability and will be instructed accordingly. All classes, regardless of proficiency, will substitute dry land swimming movements for calisthenics. All the different strokes will be practiced on land and then a period will be devoted to trying out the same strokes in the water. The non-swimmers will be aided by a volunteer corps of instructors so that they should make rapid advancement. Following the instruction period each day will come a recreation period of water games, races, etc. This program will be under the direction of Physical Director Dullinger and a corps of assistants.

The main purpose of this new class will be to develop better swimmers, as nearly all of the boys can swim in some manner or other. In a test recently given to a class of boys ranging in age from eleven to fourteen, there were only six out of a class of forty that were unable to pass a test in diving, swimming and floating or treading water. Special emphasis will be given to developing style and form in the various strokes.

The schedule for this new program which begins on Monday, April 11, is as follows: Mondays and Thursdays for swimmers, Tuesdays and Fridays for non-swimmers and Wednesdays and Saturdays for both classes combined.

HIGHLAND.

Highland, April 6.—Auxiliary Club was most delightfully entertained Friday afternoon, April 6, at the home of Mrs. J. P. Whitley where a large delegation of members and some guests assembled to discuss business and have a social time. All were cordially received and at the opening, Scripture was read by Mrs. Hiltchcock and the Lord's Prayer and singing by club members, then the president welcomed all and business was under way. Reports of officers and secretary and treasurer show that the members are doing good work and have gained greatly during the year and all lend generously of their time and knowledge to the furthering of the great work and as all meet to consult with one another. The illumination would be poor if they insisted upon the use of only their own candle but we know the basis of all good work is union and this is where their success takes a strong hold. Two new members were received, Miss Grace Scott and Miss Dorothy Churchill. After business every one enjoyed the visiting. The hostesses, Mrs. Whitley, Clark and Schepmoos, served sandwiches, chicken salad, olives, jelly, cake and coffee and to finish Mrs. Whitley had April fool candy. It was beautiful to the eye but not so fine to the palate, yet all enjoyed it greatly. Some had forgotten the meeting on April fools day were never thinking of a joke upon them so they got trapped nicely. It created a great deal of sport. Expressions of pleasure was given the hostess and April 1, 1921, will not be forgotten by clubbers.
